Wigstock is Free to attend. Upcoming Events The Golden Goat The Golden Goat, also known as the Happy Goat, is the official mascot of Wigstock, located in the center of the festival grounds. He is a large, white goat who is famed for his many antics, including eating huge amounts of food and then throwing it up into the crowd, performing impromptu human stunts (such as pulling a grown man in a pair of jeans), and prancing around the festival grounds. He was born in the summer of 1988 and has been part of Wigstock since day one. The Golden Goat went missing for much of the first year, prompting much panic amongst the attendees. He was found safe and sound, and a number of questions were asked of the goat as to what he was doing at the festival. He has continued his antics ever since. The Golden Goat, along with many of the other festival mascots, are available for the use of charitable organizations. For more information, contact the Pemberton Society. a newer mascot, appearing for the first time at the 2007 festival. He is an anthropomorphic calf, although he takes a couple of steps like a goat. He was created by R.D. 'Jayden' Hall (spelled with one 'n', an official mascot of Wigstock) for his project, Kicking It Out. Since then, he has become one of the most popular Wigstock mascots. The Regal Goat has been featured on most of the flyers and posters, and is often seen at the entertainment stage, posing for photographs and shaking hands with the crowd. The Regal Goat plays host to many of the Wigstock events, including the Costume Parade, the 'He's a He-She-It!' Talent Contest, and the Night Horse Parade. The Regal Goat was created by R.D. 'Jayden' Hall. The Night Horse The Night Horse is a mascot who was introduced in 2010. He is a man dressed as a horse, but he does not wear any of the traditional horse trappings such as a bridle or saddle. He is dressed in a red hood, carried on a platform, and accompanied by a group of musicians who try to play an instrument at the same time. The horse was first revealed in Wigstock's official video, and has been met with
